Dear Parent, Carer or Guardian,

I am writing to give you some updated guidance on our target setting procedures, which become your child's flightpaths.

As I am sure you are aware we monitor and review our target setting process and procedures regularly and due to national adjustments, we have taken the decision to reflect this in our flightpath model and this may impact your child's overall flightpaths. Therefore, you may see on your child's Go4School records that their flightpaths have increased, decreased or stayed the same. Please be assured that our flightpath model continues to be aspirational and allows for your child to be ambitious in their GCSE studies and targets. We will continue to review, on an individual basis, your child's progress towards their flightpaths and they will be moved upwards if their performance indicates that this is more suitable for them.

As a school we do not see flightpaths as an end target; they are there for guidance and teachers strive for all students to achieve as highly as possible no matter what their flightpath is.

If you have any questions regarding this, please contact Julia Jackman
(j.jackman@warriner.oxon.sch.uk).

Yours sincerely,

Sharon Nicholls
Head of School
