Grade 6 in GCSE French

Languages are all around us; they are used in so many situations whether at work, on holiday or just casually in day-to-day life—we live in a multilingual global society. Speaking a foreign language gives you access to a whole new world; music, the Internet, cultural history, people you would never otherwise have met. A great way to start getting to know and understand other people better is by learning their language.

There are three things it is important to remember about languages:

- It is a multilingual world - not everyone speaks English. In fact, 94% of the world does not speak English as their first language and 75% of the world does not speak English at all.
- A little language can make a lot of difference. Many think that the only jobs available for language students are in translation, interpreting and teaching but this is not true. There are many opportunities in a huge range of industries and some knowledge of a foreign language is much in demand, as employers seek those capable of communicating with foreign customers or visitors.
- Languages improve the quality of your life and your understanding of how other people live and think. Learning languages will broaden your horizons and opportunities in the workplace, including increased opportunities for travel, promotion and better salaries. Studying languages teaches you all the skills that employers look for: an analytical mind; good thought process; amazing memory capacity; fantastic cultural and intercultural awareness; good communication; great team player. A language degree or having languages as part of your degree is also extremely useful—language graduates are among the most employable of all university graduates.

The Modern Languages Department aims to develop students' ability to understand and communicate effectively in the foreign language, acquire language learning skills and develop an understanding of how a language works, as well as encourage enjoyment and provide a basis for further study of French.

A-level French builds upon your existing knowledge gained at GCSE. The emphasis of the A-level French course focuses on improving communication in French through different means as well as being able to use it in a variety of situations.

Students study social and technological change alongside highlights of French-speaking artistic culture, including francophone music and cinema. Students also explore the influence of the past on present-day French-speaking communities. Throughout their studies, they will learn the language in the context of French-speaking countries and the issues and influences which have shaped them. Students will study a text and a film.

Assessment

The course is assessed through three units at the end of the two year course.

Paper 1—Listening, Reading and Writing (40% of A level)

Paper 2—Writing (30% of A level)

Paper 3—Speaking (30% of A level) which includes an individual research project
